DESPITE thousands of people visiting daily, the state of toilets and drinking water facilities on court premises are in a poor shape. A ground report by TNIE showed that the issue is not limited to just one court, but in almost every court in the city, including the Madras High Court.

TNIE's visit to at least five court complexes - Madras High Court, Saidapet Magistrate Court, Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Court in Egmore, the Combined Court Campus in Chengalpattu, and Alandur Court revealed poorly maintained toilets, many of which were either locked (especially the PwDs toilets) or in disrepair.

The Saidapet Magistrate Court is one of the busiest subordinate courts in the city. Yet, visitors endure long hours without proper toilet access. The toilets on the premises were found to be extremely unhygienic, with fecal matter around the toilets. Discarded water bottles clogged the toilets. The campus houses eight courts but has only six restrooms, two of which often remain closed, say visitors.

"Since court sessions last for several hours, we are forced to hold our urge to urinate due to the lack of clean toilets. We relieve ourselves outside in nearby metro stations or hotels," said an advocate.

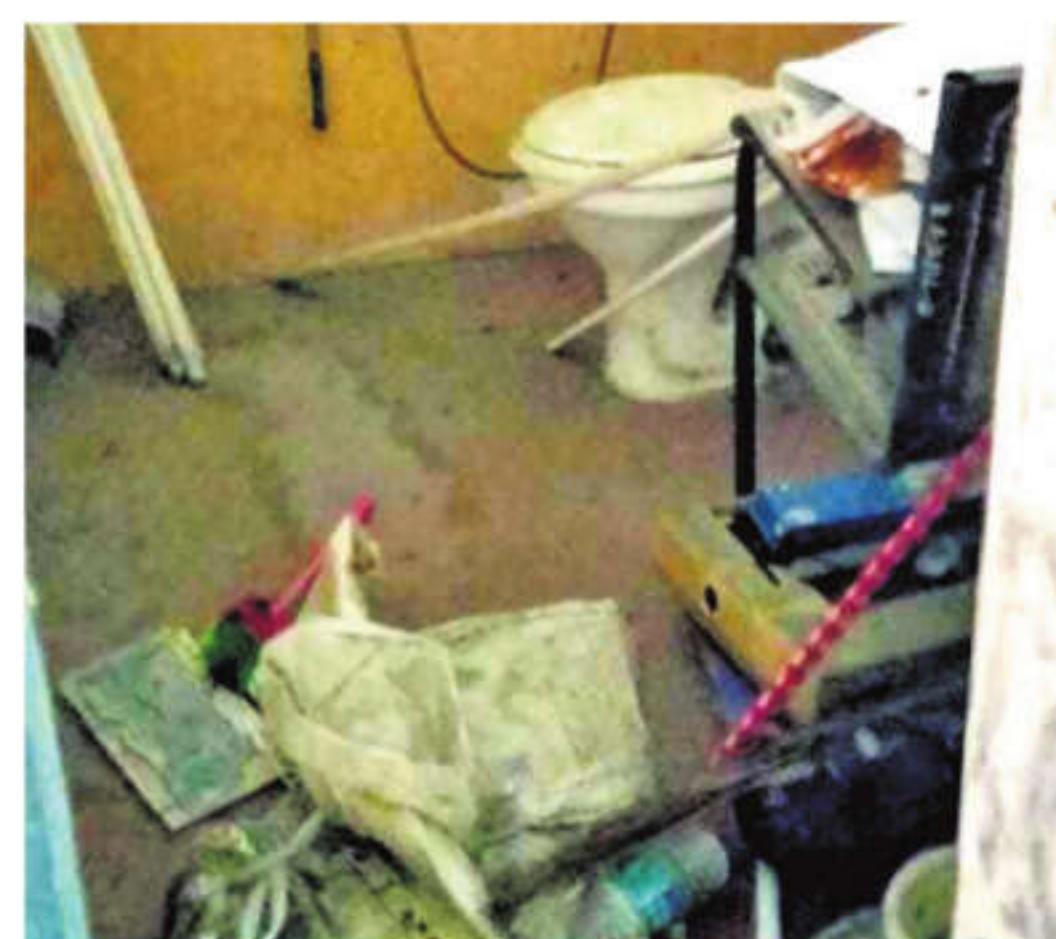

The toilets at five court complexes that TNIE visited were found to be poorly maintained. Many of them were locked, in disrepair or extremely unhygienic.

Broken toilets, no drinking water: Courts in city blind to basic needs

Drinking water facilities are equally poor as the water dispenser seemed to have no supply. The court relies on a single lift with an 800kg capacity for eight courts and has only one emergency exit for the entire campus.

A similar situation was observed at the Chengalpattu Combined Court, as the toilet block for men and women on the ground floor remained locked, with no staff in sight. Visitors were forced to use facilities on the second floor of the main building, where restrooms had broken doors and damaged locks, leaving only one unclean toilet accessible. The toilets on the first floor had no lights and were also unusable. There were no separate toilets for differently-abled persons. Also conspicuous was the lack of drinking water facilities, forcing visitors to buy bottled water.

Court were covered in bird droppings, with tumblers visibly unclean. A newly constructed public toilet block within the premises provides separate areas for men and women, and dedicated toilets for the differently-abled. However, there are no single-occupancy gender-neutral toilets. While the new toilet block was reasonably clean, older restrooms inside the court building were in a bad condition. Locked toilets on the Family Court building's ground floor and poorly maintained facilities on upper floors remain common issues.

Arjuna S (45), who assists his wife with a neurological disability, a stenographer at the high court, said, "One of my biggest challenges is helping her navigate from the second to the third floor of the Family Court to access the ladies' western toilet, as the second floor lacks such a facility. The poor hygiene and stench from the toilets raise concerns of potential health complications." Toilets in the city civil court building were also seen with broken door locks, leaky taps, and foul-smelling.

R Kanmani, a transwoman advocate, said the absence of gender-neutral toilets forces her to use restrooms based on her attire. "When wearing a saree, I use the women's restroom, and when dressed in a shirt and pants, I use the men's restroom," she said. She highlighted the lack of sanitary napkin vending machines, disposal units, and dustbins in the toilets. However, Kanmani received a positive response to her letter requesting gender-neutral toilets, with officials promising three such facilities soon in the high court. But this needs to be implemented in every other court and public space, she said.

Toilets designated for differ-ently-abled were locked in both Egmore and Alandur courts, with entryways blocked by cleaning materials, rendering them inaccessible.

When TNIE attempted to contact the Public Works Department for a comment regarding the unrepaired and poorly maintained facilities, the efforts went in vain.

Man arrested for harassing IIT-M student

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

A 29-year-old migrant worker was arrested by the Kottapuram police on charges of sexually assaulting an IIT Madras student when she was at a tea shop along the Taramani-Velachery Main Road on Tuesday evening. Onlookers and other students nabbed the man and handed him over to the police.

According to the police, the accused, Sriram of Uttar Pradesh, has been working at a bakery in the locality for the past two months. After Sriram touched the student inappropriately, she raised an alarm and those present nearby apprehended and handed him over to the police.

A police source said that Sunny was traced to a resort in Dehradun as he had switched on his phone recently and also withdrew cash from an ATM there. The police said Sunny

Tri�licane extortion case: One more cop arrested

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

THE Triplicane police on Tuesday arrested one more policeman in the case where a special sub inspector and three men from the income tax department robbed ₹15 lakh from a man. The cop was identified as a sub inspector Sunny Llyod attached to the Saidapet police station. He was nabbed in Dehradun and was brought to Chennai. After his arrest, he was placed under suspension.

A police source said that Sunny was traced to a resort in Dehradun as he had switched on his phone recently and also withdrew cash from an ATM there. The police said Sunny had information about people who carry huge amounts of cash in the city. The police are investigating whether he played a role in several other extortions.

The issue came to light when the victim carrying ₹20 lakhs was stopped by SSI Raja Singh of Triplicane Police Station. He then alerted income tax officials Dhamodharan, Prabhu, and Pradeep who came to the spot. The trio took the victim in a car and robbed ₹15 lakh from him at knifepoint and gave him the rest. Based on a complaint, the police arrested Raja Singh, Dhamodharan, Prabhu and Pradeep. Raja Singh was then placed under suspension.

THE bodies of three minor boys were found in a lake near Uthiramerur in the Kanchipuram district on Wednesday. While local villagers initially alleged that the boys' faces appeared to be burnt, the police have denied these claims. A probe is underway to determine whether the deaths were due to murder or accidental drowning.

The Uthiramerur police identified the boys as Vishva, Chandran, and Barath, all 17 years old, and natives of Palayaseevaram village. The trio were Class XII students at a government school in Walajabad. The boys had been missing for the past three days, prompting their parents to file a police complaint.

On Wednesday morning, the bodies were discovered in a lake at Vizhuthavadi village near Uthiramerur. The police were informed and recovered the bodies, which were later identified by the parents. They were sent for post-mortem. Preliminary inquiries revealed that Barath had frequently quarreled with Sanjay, a resident of a nearby village. The police are investigating whether Sanjay could be involved in the case.

Initially, the police assumed the boys had gone on a trip due to the long holidays. Their parents filed a complaint only after they were unable to contact them. Regarding the allegations of burnt faces, the Uthiramerur police stated that the bodies, having been submerged in water for an extended period, had decomposed. It is possible that fish may have bitten them. The cause of death is yet to be determined, and the police await the postmortem report.

History-sheeter hacked, 7 held
 Chennai: History sheeter Ulaganathan (33) was hacked to death by a gang inside his house at New Washermanpet on Tuesday night. His partner Malathi was also injured in the incident. The police have arrested seven people including Vallarasu, son of history sheeter Designu who was murdered last year. ENS

EB wireman fixing fault sans safety gear electrocuted

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

A wireman employed by the Tamil Nadu Power Distribution Corporation Limited (TNPCL) was electrocuted when he climbed atop an electric pole, without any safety gear, which was connected to a high tension cable at Pudur near Madurantakam in Chengalpattu district. The police have booked a case of death due to negligence and arrested the line inspector.

The deceased was identified as Boopalan (45) of Palur village. When he was on duty, his office received a complaint that a tree branch had fallen on the electric pole. Boopalan and a line inspector Shankar (46) had gone to attend the complaint.

The usual procedure is that the line inspector would ensure the supply to the line was switched off and then the wireman would climb the pole. But here it seems the line inspector did not follow the procedure. When Boopalan climbed the pole, he was electrocuted, a police source said. Since it is a bailable offence, Shankar was released later.

As per TNPCL officials, a compensation amount which is yet to be finalised will be given to Boopalan's family. The department has also assured a job for one of Boopalan's legal heirs. An internal inquiry has been initiated to find out why Boopalan was not wearing any safety gear.
